Media Relations Contact: Bill Hensel, 404-479-2886

Atlanta – January 12, 2009 – Invesco Institutional, one of the world’s leading asset managers, today announces the launch of a re-designed Web site to better serve the U.S. Institutional investment marketplace. The www.institutional.invesco.com Web site has been expanded to provide easier access to all of the company’s diversified investment strategies and improve secure client account access.

“These latest Web enhancements enable Invesco to provide a superior level of service to our institutional clients,” said Andrew Schlossberg, head of U.S. Marketing. “Our goal is to meet our client’s unique needs and reaching them electronically continues to be a preferred method.”

Using new branding introduced earlier this year, the site incorporates user-friendly, well-organized navigation and site search functionality that allow easier access to information on all of Invesco Institutional’s diversified investment strategies and delivery vehicles, performance fact sheets and market commentaries.

“Invesco’s mission of helping people worldwide build their financial security drove the requirements of the re-design,” said Joanna Irwin, Director, Marketing Communications. “The site gives institutional investors easy access to our latest thinking on investment trends and opportunities. It also incorporates best practices for Web site layout and design, making it easier for visitors to find the investment perspectives and solutions they are looking for.”
