Media Relations Contact: Bill Hensel, 404-479-2886

Atlanta – October 14, 2008 – In a move that further strengthens its ability to market Invesco's broad range of investment capabilities, Invesco today announced that Michael Mondo has joined its Institutional Sales and Service team as a Senior Director. He is primarily focused on new business generation and deepening existing client relationships. He is part of the leadership team for Invesco's efforts directed toward corporations, endowments and foundations, primarily located in the eastern United States. He reports to Ben Utt and is based in the company's Boston office.

"We are thrilled to attract someone of Mike's caliber and proven experience to Invesco's sales and marketing team," said Jack Markwalter, head of U.S. Institutional Sales, Client Service and Marketing. "As we deliver more of our strong investment capabilities to the marketplace, having someone with Mike's leadership capabilities further allows us to better deliver world class products and solutions to our clients."

Mondo comes to Invesco with over 20 years of financial services experience of which the past ten years have been in the institutional investment management arena. Prior to joining Invesco he was with JPMorgan Asset Management as a Client Advisor. Additionally, his other asset management experiences were with Evergreen Investments and State Street Global Advisors. Mondo holds a BBA in Marketing from Adelphi University and an MBA in Finance from St. John's University.
